Son of oil man

Lived overseas most of life

Marine Corp Intelligence Officer

Addressing an audience of bloggers

- He is a spy saying spying doesn't work.
- It costs $1.2 billion/week to produce the president's daily brief for a guy that can't read.
- NSA is 1950's mindsets with 1970's technology
- SCIC completely screwed up Trailblazer
- Eschelon is baloney
- 80% of significant intelligence comes from analysis of patterns.
- General Chinzekie knew what was needed to make Iraq go right
- and Paul Wolfowitz lied to congress and said they'll receive us like liberators the General should have grabbed him by the throat and thrown him down the steps of the capitol
- Unprofessional to confuse loyalty with integrity
- We have had a failure of Generalship in America, unwilling to think for themselves, just anxious to keep their stars
- Smedly Butler, highest decorated Marine said war is a racket and the only reason war is happening is the American public is lethargic
- Bloggers are the Paul Reveres and Patric Henries of our generation
- Bottom up horizontal connection is key, sharing at all levels, not top down control
- Public intelligence and influence is about to take off
- We're about to bury "rule by secrecy"
- Civil affairs is the focal point
- The intelligence guys need to go back in their box, bloggers, not informants are key
- The FBI's about to try and hire 2,000 informants in the Soviet Police style approach to security, that's idiocy
- If bloggers self-organize and attache themselves like leeches to specific issues, corporations, organizations, challenges, whatever, you will be the intelligence Minutemen of this century.
- The power is in your hands. There aren't enough guns to kill us all and Halliburton can't build jails fast enough to keep us down.
- Bloggers, as Linux is organized, where you grab onto an issue or something, and you are a part of a structured citizen journalism blogging thing that lets no evil doing go unnoticed, that rules.
- I think we are at a historic shift of power restoring the constitution
- The Comptroller General has told Congress the United States of America is insolvent. We're outta Schlitz. We literally have no money to make it to the next decade.
- There's some very easy solutions. I could eliminate all income taxes tomorrow, and have more than enough money to fund the government, by using some other guy's bright idea, we tax the Federal Reserve at .0006, doubles our money until we decide to put them out of business permanently, because we certainly should not have central banks.

- We've put together an electoral reform pledge, and it's my view that any member of congress, any member of the Senate that refuses to sign both the constitutional pledge supporting the constitution, and the electoral reform pledge, should be put out of business. And I believe that will be 95% of all these people.
- It may be time to literally dump Congress on its ass and start over.
- The government has gotten stupid to the point that it can't write a statement of work, and so they ask the contractors to write a statement of work, and the contractors write a statement of work and say you need more of what I have been unable to sell.
- And the government say yeah, all right, good. Put it in the budget.
- This is real shit. I can crack all ten of the top level threats to humanity in less than 25 years for less than 1/3 of what the world is spending on the military.
- And I will tell you the price of buying back the United States Government, it is $500,000,000/year.
- In the early 90's Newt Gingrich and the Republicans got together, and their plan is now on the street, it's been exposed by a Colombia professor. They concluded that they could buy the United States Government from School Board to State House to White House for $300 million/year, and by golly they did.
- And every single member of Congress is impeachable for having abdicated their article one responsibilities under the constitution and serving as foot soldiers for the president and his mendacious vice president.
- If you confiscate all the wealth in the world, which I do not advocate, all you have is a $5 bill for everyone of the 5 billion poor on the planet.

For what we have spent on the Iraq war:

- I could have given a free cell phone to every one of the 5 billion poor on the planet,
- I could have taken the 10% residual capabilities on DOD's satellites, abandoned communications satellites, and I could have provided free T-1 to the southern hemisphere.
- That's the kind of stuff we have to do, because if we don't do that, those 5 billion people, instead of producing wealth that stabilizes the earth, are going to produce plagues, epidemics, criminal gangs, drugged up people
- Ralph Peter is a friend of mine and the bottom line is the only path to wine women and wealth for bad asses anywhere on the planet that have no money is guns.
- And what's happening here is we are at the very beginning, we're just starting to come out of our little egg shell
- When the industrial era began it broke the connection between kinship and trust. And it started treating people as commodities
- And then we lost sight of our government and we allowed corporations to buy the government
- The United States of America no longer represents we the people, but you can change that.
- The reason it's not working today is because we have a military industrial complex that profits from secrecy and war and it does not profit from efficiency and peace
- The bottom line here is that Central Banking is an evil cancer. These people are selling us credit they don't have, so they can take profits they don't deserve, out of our pockets. That's nuts!

- The United States government is Constitutionally chartered to print money on the good faith and credit of all of us and not pay interest. Why are we being such fools?
- Well, unfortunately, if you fight them you get assassinated. Lincoln and Kennedy were both about to print money, and not borrow from the banks. I can't connect those two dots, but I can tell you they are side by side.
- But the reality is, the Federal Government is broken in every possible way,
- and it's going to be localized bottom up resilience networks that are going to save us, that where you guys (bloggers) come in.
- Our educational system stinks.
- It beats the creativity out of kids by the time they are in the 4th grade
- It forces you to become a blogger or hacker in order to become creative
- You guys are the lifeboat. We've gone from America the Beautiful to America the shit
- I believe we need to start blogging retrospective impeachments
- I'm not saying we need to hang them or tar and feather them, just out them.
- I think it's time for citizen investigative journalism to go deep, and go back, and go current.
- And people need to understand they can't get away with this stuff
- There is absolutely no lack of solution
- and there is also no lack of money
- What is lacking is the popular political will to exercise our God given right to be in charge
- I got thrown off Fox News for saying the global war on terror wasn't real. Well, it's not.
- I mean until we can get to one man one bullet for the top 6,000 we can contain the next level and we can provide a quality of life for everybody on the planet
- At the lowest level, we're not going to get it
- The Air Force solution for terrorism is to kill one guy and an entire village
- which of course creates a hundred to two hundred additional terrorists because of that indiscriminate war crime. It's just nuts.
- And it's nuts because the media isn't doing their job, and so it falls to you.
- And my dream is to have someone adopt every zip code and start doing that weekly report for their zip code
- and those little reports will start having babies, and it'll start spreading
- Your government is stupid
- And they're stupid deliberately
- The intelligence community does not do open source information because they like to think the cabinet departments are doing their open source information. That's not true.
- The cabinet departments don't know how to do decision support
- What they know how to do is take stake holder interests and turn them into policies that increases budget share That is not what I call reality based budgeting
- Politics today has gotten so dirty it's not worth anybody's time if they've got a brain
- Well, I don't have a brain, I have a soul
- And I believe that America needs to get back in the business of managing itself
- I am absolutely certain that Central Banks are an evil
- Central Banks are screwing us all

- Orwell had it right, we are pigs being harvested for profits
- I do believe there are secret societies, although, ya know, given a choice between conspiracy and incompetence, I generally go with incompetence
- The Bilderberg Group, I just saw a list of who attended last time, and it's almost a list of nobodies who want to be somebodies combined with somebodies on their way down. I'm not that impressed.
- These people think they are the movers and the shakers
- They're only the movers and the shakers as long as you let them be the movers and the shakers.
- I spent 18 years trying to help secret government agencies get in touch with unclassified information and Tom Attley sent me an e-mail and he had this little signature blog where Buckminster Fuller said “don't try and heal a broken system, create a new system that replaces it.”
- So I'm honored to be here to set the tone for you guys and my bottom line is don't waste your time on the Federal Government, it's going away
- There are 27 secessionist movements
- There are 9 distinct nations in North America
- I anticipate some virtual separation in the Republic
- And I think that you're going to find that like Vermont for example is all of a sudden gonna be seen by the rest of America as exactly where we want to be, or Seattle
- And that is called the Spike Theory of Change
- As soon as one state gets it perfect, it's gonna spread like wild fire
